Weakens Pritchard's Position,

It is generally agreed by those who have closely studied the railway situation in the two States that the surrender of the Southern in North Carolina will effectually weaken the position of Judge Jeter C. Pritchard, of the United States Circuit Court, in regard to his injunction as applied to this State.

Neither the governor nor the attorney general would discuss the situation today further than to reiterate what the governor said in his statement last night, An effort was also made to-night to se-
